Issue #2– August 2025
Your monthly dose of angling updates.

Welcome back to all our members.

This month, we're proud to showcase the incredible efforts and triumphs of our local anglers, share vital updates on club events, and provide insights into the Port Macquarie Game fishing scene.

Your contributions make our club great – dive in and see what's new!

Hey Crew,

Hope everyone's staying warm this winter , and a huge shout-out to every single one of you rocking your club jumpers, Great to see so many been worn promoting the club.

We've had some cracking reports of early season striped marlin already tearing it up out there in our local waters!

It's been absolutely awesome to see our members getting amongst them, landing some early beauties and setting the standard for what's shaping up to be a red-hot season.

Reminder: First marlin for major points is still out there, waiting for the chase!
So get a crew together and go for a look.

Can't wait to see every single one of your faces at our 2024-2025 club presentation!

Cheers

Club President - Matthew Hobbs

Filling in your Tag Cards

A little bit of preparation and planning before heading out on the water will make tagging and filling out tag cards much easier. It is best to familiarise yourself with the tag cards, what species can be tagged and minimum sizes for tagging before heading out on the water.

You can check eligible species and minimum sizes for tagging by scanning the QR code on the top right of the tag card or you can access the list here:

<https://www.dpi.nsw.gov.au/fishing/recreational/resources/fish-tagging/game-fish-tagging>

It is a good idea to have the tags and tagging device accessible and ready to use before catching fish. For example, a tag can be attached to the handle of the tagging device by a tight rubber band and ready to go in an accessible location. This will save rummaging around to find the tag and tag cards while the fish is out of the water. Also keeping a few pens with the tag cards and double bagging them is a good idea. Having a simple 'system' or routine makes tagging quicker and easier. Fishing with a buddy also makes the tagging process easier. One person can call out measurements while the other fills in the tag card. The tag card can be filled out in any order, but the below order focuses on pertinent and easily forgettable information first.

1. Check the tag number matches with the tag card and is correct for the species and size of fish being tagged. Ideally the only tag card without a tag should match the tag ready to go in you

2. Tag the fish after securing the fish with correct handling (billfish and sharks secured or led boatside, or for smaller fish, netted and placed on a wet brag mat). The fish should be tagged with the correct depth and angle as indicated on the diagram on the tag card.

3. Measure the fish and estimate the fish's weight. Fill out the length and estimated weight section on the tag card in centimetres (cm) and kilograms (kg) respectively. Tick the boxes to indicate the type of length measurement used, either total length (TL) or fork length (FL) and whether the measurement was estimated or an actual measurement. This information is the easiest to forget so it is best to do this first. Take note of where the fish is hooked, if it is bleeding from the gills and its condition. These parts of the tag card should be filled out next.

5. Complete the rest of the tag card from top to bottom in block letters. Filling out the tag card in this way allows the fish to be released back into the water as soon as possible without delay. With practice you should be aiming to have the fish tagged and released in the shortest possible time you can increase its chance of survival

FIRST BILLFISH TAG & RELEASE? ☐ PLEASE COMPLETE & MAIL TODAY, OTHERWISE TAGGING IS OF NO VALUE.

Note the 'Locality' is the port, followed by distance and direction. If John just wrote 'Sydney' with no coordinates this would not be accepted. If John was fishing on or near a well-known location, 'Long Reef' for example, he could just write 'Long Reef' without the coordinates. More information is best, but with the latitude and longitude, coordinates only need to be down to minutes. More detailed coordinates down to seconds are not necessary.

What if the fish is already tagged?

If the tag is in good condition, leave the tag in. There is no need to re-tag the fish. Removing a perfectly good tag and retagging the fish with a new tag will just introduce another potential infection point for the fish and use up a tag that could be used on new untagged fish. Note that marine growth can make a new tag look old after several weeks. All that is needed is to record the information that you would normally put on a tag card and report the recapture to the Game Fish Tagging Program either;

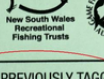

1. On our online report form (be sure to include your e-mail address) here:

<https://www.dpi.nsw.gov.au/fishing/recreational/resources/fish-tagging/game-fish-tagging/gamefish-recapture>

2. By e-mail gamefish.tagging@dpird.nsw.gov.au or

3. By phone 02 6691 9602 (please leave your name and number in a voice message if you don't get an answer)

If the tag already in the fish is unreadable or damaged, you can remove this tag by cutting it off at the base and retagging the fish with a new tag. The tag number of the original tag (tag already in the fish) can be recorded in the box at the top right of the tag card.

Game Fish Tagging Program

The Game Fish Tagging Program is the largest saltwater tagging program of its kind in the world and has been in operation since 1973.

It is used to obtain information on the biology (distribution, movement, growth, exploitation) of billfish, tunas, sharks and sport fish and encourages game fishers to participate in the management of the fishery.

How the tagging program works

Tags are issued to anglers and when an angler catches a fish it is tagged and released, the details of the capture are recorded on a tag card with the corresponding tag number. The card is returned to the department.

How to tag game fish

When a tagged fish is recaptured, catch information is linked to the original tag and release and compared to the recapture information. Details of the distance that the fish travelled, and its growth are sent to the anglers who first tagged the fish and the anglers who recaptured it. A recapture certificate is also issued.
